McKelvey and carried a crew of thirty-eight men, of whom ten were Americans. The ship was armed and carried a gunner's crew. The Petrolite was formerly the steamship Excelsior, under the German flag, and was transferred to the American registry with other ships of the Standard Oil fleet early in the war. She was built at Steelton, Pa., in 1908. She carried oil in bulk.

Repairs to the German submarine will take at least two weeks. The vessel will be interned. The German commander today paid a visit to the Spanish war officials, who later returned with the official report. The submarine is of 450 tons and carries a crew of twenty. It is equipped with two torpedo tubes and two rapid fire guns.

Fort Sheridan, June 12.—Candidates for commissions in the reserve officers' training camp were cheered today with the knowledge that the paymaster will be at the camp this week with the first month's pay. Payment already has been made to two engineering companies, one from each regiment, as they are expected to leave the latter part of the week for some other camp for field training. The next division to receive the paymaster will be the men who are to go to a point on the Atlantic coast for field work in the coast artillery school. The firm had informed the secretary of a shipment received from a certain house with a German name in Venezuela for sale here on a commission basis. The secretary was asked "whether or not it would be an act of disloyalty" if the proceeds were paid to the Venezuelan firm. Secretary Redfield advised withholding of payment which he said should be disposed of as pending legislation if enacted, may prescribe, and suggested suspension of business relations with the Venezuelan firm during the war.

CAUCASUS BANDITS AGREE TO DISBAND

Petrograd, June 12.—Bandits of Kakhaetia in the Caucasus who under a local Rob Roy, Chomet Juti, for ten years have terrorized the dwellers in the valleys, murdering, plundering and kidnapping women, have just effected a reconciliation with their victims under romantic circumstances. After the revolution, the Kakhaetians organized self defense societies which have been active in the region. A meeting at which a raid against the robbers was proposed. During the meeting envoys of Achmet appeared armed to the teeth, and announced they were willing to concede peace.

The obdurate Kakhaetians replied the bandits already captured by them must be handed over to the authorities for punishment. The meeting promised to end in a general disarmament, when more bandits appeared escorting Achmet's wife, a beautiful young woman of Christian origin, whom Achmet had kidnapped in 1913, converted into a devoted partisan. Following the example of the Sabine woman, the bandit's wife fell on her knees, shed tears and so touched the hearts of the incensed citizens that peace was concluded on the spot. A resolution was adopted declaring that the families committed by the bandits were due to the demoralizing influence of the autonomy committee, which was dispatched to the minister of justice with a petition asking for quashing of pending prosecution.

CLASH OVER POLICY FOR LI YUAN HUNG

BRITISH AND JAPANESE LEGAL ADVISERS TO CHINESE PRESIDENT DISAGREE ON COURSE TO PURSUE.

SITUATION A DEADLOCK

Crisis Hangs on Dissolution of Parliament, Which General Tsung Demands Following Display of Armed Force.

Peking, June 11 (delayed).—Conflicting opinions to President Li Yuan Hung's proper course of action in the present political crisis were given today by Dr. George Morrison, a British subject and general adviser to the president, and by Prof. Makao Ariga, Japanese adviser to the president, who were called on by the executive for advice. President Li Yuan Hung has taken no definite action in response to

Dr. Wu Ting Fang.

General Chang Tsung, who recently arrived at Tsing Tien Tsun with a body of troops and demanded that the president dissolve parliament.

In his opinion to the president Dr. Morrison said:

"I urge the retention of parliament. Even if the president by a legal quibble could justify the dismissal of parliament, the world would never believe you had done so by a legal motive, but rather through fear of Chang Tsung. The world would laugh at a publicist upheld by Chang Tsung. You must retain parliament."

Prof. Ariga said:

"Parliament is illegally constituted. You called it into being. You have the right to dissolve it legally."

The president is endeavoring to procure the counter signature of Li Ching Hsi to the mandate for the dissolution of parliament which he has drawn up. Whether Li Ching Hsi will agree is doubtful. The situation is at a deadlock.

Fleas Deadlier Than Tigers.

I read an official report when in Bombay that during the preceding year tigers had killed 1,000 persons in India. You shudder at the fearful ravages of this king of the jungles. But at the very time I was in Bombay the fleas were killing 800 persons every week in that one city alone.

Those fleas were riding upon the backs of rodents and depositing the devastating bubonic plague in thousands of homes throughout India.

The insignificant and negligible thing called a flea yesterday has today replaced the tiger and the deadly cobra as the vast menace to 300,000,000 souls in India.—Philadelphia Ledger.

PLAN CELEBRATION AT MILTON COLLEGE

FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF INSTITUTION'S FOUNDING TO BE OBSERVED NEXT WEEK.

RAISING ENDOWMENT

Statement Will Be Made With Reference to Campaign Which is Now in Progress.—Fine Program Arranged.

Milton College has made elaborate plans for observing the fiftieth anniversary of its founding during commencement week, beginning June 15 and closing on June 21. Dr. L. C. Randolph of the college faculty was in Janesville today calling on friends and alumni of the institution, extending to them an invitation to be present at the exercises.

A feature of the week will be the important announcements which are to be made with reference to the endowment campaign which is going forward under the direction of Dr. Randolph. His campaign has for its final goal the raising of $500,000 for a college endowment fund. The immediate goal is the securing of $105,000, to bring the college up to the standard which has been set by the United States government.

Dr. Randolph, in terms Milton Janesville's educational suburb. In a statement regarding the college, he said: "Milton was one of the pioneer institutions of Wisconsin and has had a profound influence in moulding the educational life of the state. For sixteen years she furnished the state superintendent of public instruction, President Harvey of Stout Institute, President Salisbury of Whitewater normal school were graduates of Milton. President Plantz of Lawrence University received an educational training here in the wider life of the nation the college has played a strong part. She gave a dean to Hannemann Medical College, a president to Berea College, a general secretary to the Lavigne Mission Movement, a general manager to the Santa Fe railroad, prominent officials to the C. M. & St. P. R. R., W. C. T. U. superintendents, inspiring leaders in all departments of activity.

"The watchword of Milton has been thoroughness. Her specialty has been character building. Her atmosphere has been one of high spiritual life. She has been the center of an evangelistic program of world uplift. Her sons and daughters have gone forth with unconquerable wills, robust minds and consecrated hearts to make their part of the world better. Milton is the typical small Christian college where each professor knows every student personally and where the most intensive work is done in developing personal power and principle.

"Under President Daland's administration, the past sixteen years have marked a steady advancement in the science of education and the gymnasium have been erected on the campus. The attendance at the college proper has been nearly trebled. This year's enrollment is 30 per cent larger than was last year. An enthusiastic spirit pervades the student body and a confidence is felt that 'Milton's best days are yet to come.'

"A large number of the students will be in Milton during the anniversary week. The campus will be the scene of many greetings and reunions. Milton offers free hospitality to old students and friends. The program of the Harvard plan, each guest being provided home and breakfast.

Wednesday, June 20, will be Alumni Day. As Milton furnished 327 soldiers in the civil war, the program will appropriately begin with music by the Milton Firemen's Band and patriotic exercises around the flag. The day's events will include addresses by eminent alumni, singing by the College Octet of Chautauque fame, the Treble Clef, the Choral Union and the Glee club. A pageant representing in beautiful symbolism fifty years of college history will be presented. Following the fellowship supper at 6:30 p. m. there will be toasts, college stunts, music and stereopticon views.

On the forenoon of Thursday, June 21, the commencement exercises will be conducted, the address being given by Dean Lewis of Lewis Institute. SEEK THE AID OF COMMERCIAL CLUB

Free Dental Clinic Asks Endorsement of the Commercial Club.—New Industry Seeks Location.

Endorsement by the Commercial club of the work of the free dental clinic has been asked by the committee of the city federation to make the administration of the committee has rested, and was yesterday considered by the directors of the club at their weekly session. A communication from Mrs. Percy Munger, John G. Rexford and Miss Agnes Webber, explained the work of the clinic, emphasizing the fact that the appropriation made by the city is insufficient for the work necessary to make the clinic most efficient. That an endorsement by the Commercial club and possibly their aid in securing more money would be of invaluable value, was urged to the directors. The matter was referred to the civic committee of the club for further action.

That a new industry of considerable size for the manufacture of refrigerators, dairy machinery, etc., is seeking a location, and has several times sent representatives to Janesville to look over the ground was reported to the directors. The matter is being investigated, before any further action is taken by the club.

Captain E. N. Caldwell of Company M, appeared before the directors and explained the need of more money and its administration after being collected. Something over four hundred dollars had been collected prior to the benefit performance, but the captain declared that at least eight hundred dollars would be but a substantial amount for a company of this size to have in its treasury, which would enable the company to pay for the services of a company of this size. The committee, headed by George S. Parker, will confer with Edgerton boosters of the company, regarding the division of the fund between the local residents and those belonging to the Edgerton platoon.

BENEFIT INCREASES COMPANY "M" FUND

Definite Returns Not Reported as Yet But Performance Drew Large Crowd Last Night.

Through returns on the ticket sale for the benefit performance given last night at the Myers Theatre for Company M have not yet been made to Captain E. N. Caldwell, but the captain declared that at least eight hundred dollars would be but a substantial amount for a company of this size to have in its treasury, which would enable the company to pay for the services of a company of this size. The committee, headed by George S. Parker, will confer with Edgerton boosters of the company, regarding the division of the fund between the local residents and those belonging to the Edgerton platoon.

The company will drill on the streets tonight at eight o'clock. The first time in some days, and will entertain afterwards at an informal dancing party. These dances, which have become weekly institutions in the social calendar of the city, are very popular in popularity, each time, and bring in a steady dividend for the company fund.

The unit has received an invitation to take part in the flag day exercises to be held here next Thursday under the auspices of the Elks' lodge, and will probably march or put on an exhibition drill if the men favor such a course when it is proposed to march to the city square.

The entire company has received a cordial invitation from the Janesville city fathers to attend the annual picnic to be held at Yost Park next Saturday. It is likely that most of the men will accept the invitation.

COURT SETTLES DISPUTE OVER PAY FOR FEED USED ON COL. GEO. HALL'S FARM

Judgment was rendered yesterday by Justice of the Peace Eugene Kalveling in favor of Sidney Slater and Joseph Slater of the town of Union against Col. George W. Hall of Evansville, and Benjamin Oviatt, now of Dane county, for the sum of $46.00. The action grew out of a dispute between the parties over the payment of hay and oats sold by the Slaters for use on the farm of Col. Hall, which the latter and Oviatt operated jointly in the town of H. S. Leavelle and the Slaters one-half of the price of the feed and the latter called upon Hall for the balance and were refused payment. Under the terms of the written agreement between Hall and Oviatt for running the farm, the court held that they were partners in a common enterprise and so were jointly liable for expenses incurred for supplies used on the place. A. Avery represented the Slaters and W. H. Dougherty appeared for Col. Hall.

After a three course dinner the happy couple left on a trip to Milwaukee and Chicago where they will visit friends and relatives for a few days.

APPROPRIATE FUND FOR DEFENSE BOARD

County Supervisors Provide $2,800 for Work of County Committee for Defense.

At the meeting of the county board of supervisors at the court house on Monday, a fund of $2,800 was appropriated for the work of the county defense committee. A strict accounting of all funds paid out by the defense council will be kept, and a report made to the county board.

The supervisors also appropriated $10,000 for the purpose of making extensive repairs to the county asylum and hospital, which will be done under the direction of the building committee. Action was taken as a result of an inspection of the premises last month by the supervisors as a committee of the whole.

It was also voted at the meeting yesterday that the county clerk be allowed an additional deputy to assist with the immense amount of detail work involved in connection with the registration cards, all of which must be copied and alphabetical indices made.

WHO GETS THE CHECK MISTER KLUSMEYER?

Sheriff "Bob" Whipple Still Has the Reward You Offered, But It's Causing Him Lots of Worry.

A. D. Campbell, 711 Langdon street, Madison, a Chicago and Northwest railroad passenger train conductor, called at the jail last night to learn whom he would give the check offered by William Klusmeyer, the Footville farmer, for the capture of the Austrian farm laborer who ransacked the Klusmeyer home on May 23. Campbell was not given the check, however, as there are said to be several counter claims for the reward.

Sheriff "Bob" Whipple this morning wrote Campbell after he learned to whom he would give the check.

Campbell claims he called the attention of Chief of Police Fred Gilman of Evansville to the fact that the Austrian was at the Outfit city. Gilman made the arrest and secured the confession of the theft and also recovered the suit of clothes, the watch, money and the endorsed check the Austrian stole. Several section men who saw the foreigner around the Evansville depot also want a share in the reward as they too claim that they were responsible for the capture.

United Klusmeyer designates where the check will go Sheriff Whipple will keep it.

ALL STARS WIN AGAIN OVER ORIOLES, 15 TO 5

For the second time in two weeks the All Stars have taken the measure of the Orioles, winning the Sunday game by an overwhelming score, 15 to 5. The birds went into the lead with three runs in the second when Star errors permitted the trio to cross the plate. After this, however, there was a general tightening and it was the seventh before another Oriole saw the plate. Krahmer's error after two Stars were dimmed in the sixth inning as the captain to the fore, the third man was out the Stars had garnered five tallies. Solgen was jerked for Hinkle, but the Star rally continued, Cassidy leading in the first and scoring after getting four runs. The battery for the Orioles was Krahmer, catch and Selken and Hinkle pitch. Cassidy, pitching for the Stars, had thirteen strike outs to his credit. A crowd of about 100 witnessed the game. The line-up for the All-Stars was: Foley, c.; Cassidy, p.; Bicknell, ss.; Marko, 1b.; Schilling, 2b.; Lay, 3b.; Bloch, 1c.; Granger, 1c.; and Bobcock, 1c. The All Stars play the Milton high school at Milton next Sunday.

EXPECT ACTION ON NEW COMPENSATION MEASURE THIS WEEK

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., June 12.—The big workmen's compensation bill, which has been pending in the legislature since the session of 1915, will be given consideration by the legislature this week. This bill is a substitute measure to take the place of a score of bills offering the workmen's compensation law, introduced at this session. While the bill, (611 S.) is presumably introduced by the senate committee on corporations, it has not been reported by the entire committee and is presumably put forth as a frame work upon which the senate will operate. An attempt will be made to have a joint conference on the bill by the legislature over the bill to agree on many of its sections. This was attempted last week, but the day was too late for the houses to agree on a date.

Some of the most important features of the tentative bill are: Increase in the total compensation over the present law of twelve and one-half per cent.

Limitation of the hospital and medical care to ninety days provided.

Instead of an increase in the maximum and minimum wage allowance on which compensation is paid, now on a sliding scale, which completely changes the present law. Change in the present law affecting total permanent disability, increase to cover the healing period.

A multiple injury clause. Provision for treble damage for injury or death in a prohibited employment.

Twelve Per Cent Increase. Compared with the present law, the proposed bill will produce an increase of over 12 per cent. The amount of increase is calculated on the losses paid during the three years ending June 30, 1916. During that year there was paid out by employers of Wisconsin $33,774. If all the provisions proposed are accepted this would be increased to $38,000.

Proposal is made for the removal of the present limitation of hospital and medical care to ninety days. The bill gives the industrial commission power to extend the limitation beyond ninety days. This change is calculated to call for an additional payment, based on last year's experience of about $5,000, or 5 per cent increase over the total $38,000 paid.

The proposed sliding scale is one of the most important features of the bill. This is claimed to make the law more equitable to the employer and to the injured man. The bill provides that the law would be so complicated that an injured man would not be able to figure the amount due him, a feature of the present law which is simple enough. The present law provides 65 per cent of the average wage for a specified number of weeks for various injuries, and in other cases during the period of disability the minimum wage on which compensation is now based is $7.50 a week and the maximum is $15 a week. When complaint was made that these minimums were too low the bill introduced the following sliding scale: Person not exceeding $7.20 a week, 70 per cent; $7.21 to $7.50, 80 per cent, and so on up to $12.00 and $15 when the person receives an amputation. An amendment will be offered to make a minimum wage for computation $9 and the maximum $16.50 in order to obviate the complexities of the proposed sliding scale.

A further change is proposed in the compensation for total permanent disability. The present law provides that it shall not exceed six times the average annual earnings of the injured man. This bill changes it to a weekly indemnity for the period of natural life, based on several limitations. It is estimated that this change would produce an increase of compensation paid of 7 per cent, or about $5,000 on last year's experience.

Cover Healing Period. The increase is proposed to cover the healing period. The bill provides for adding a definite number of weeks to each of the injuries specified in the statutory schedule. For example, under the present law the compensation for the loss of an arm is 65 per cent of the weekly wage for a period of 240 weeks. This will be increased to 320 weeks under the bill to cover the healing period. This change will increase the compensation paid by 3 per cent, or about $27,000, on the basis of last year's schedule.

A multiple injury clause is also proposed, increasing by 10 per cent injuries to more than one finger or toe. This would increase the total compensation paid 3 per cent, or about $3,500 annually.

Some of the other changes proposed in the bill are: treble compensation for injury or death in case of minors working in a prohibited employment; basis of computation the average annual earnings is changed from one-fifth of the average annual earnings of the employee to one-fiftieth. This latter provision will increase the compensation paid about 4 per cent, or $1,000. Another change makes the employer primarily liable and the insurance carrier secondarily liable. The number of employees that a man must employ at the same time within the terms of the act automatically is reduced from four to three.

Penalty for Delay. Where an employer is guilty of inexcusable delay in making the payment of award, the amount to be paid is increased 10 per cent. Fines in cases are left out of the act, unless they are to come in. Competence of witnesses is given the same preference as claims under the state law, thus making them a prior secured claim.

There are a number of other important provisions affecting minor details of the law. There has been considerable opposition to many of these changes before the committees, and many changes will be made before the bill is finally enacted into law. Senator William Bray of Oshkosh has framed many, but not all, of the changes of the bill.

The address was made by Mr. Buell, a very practical and instructive discourse, in which he enumerated as the essentials of life, food, clothing and shelter, but reminding his hearers that more food and shelter meant was the intellectual and spiritual side. He impressed upon the young people the importance of the duties they owed to God, as well as to making themselves serviceable to their fellowmen in every walk of life.

COMBINING TO EXPAND.

"Combination is invalid only when it is intended to restrain trade. If more business is done, in greater bulk, with greater time saving, and covering a greater variety of products than before, the organizers of an enterprise formed by combining inferior units, can hardly be accused of intending to restrain trade," says an eastern exchange.

"A railway order for fifty thousand tons of steel, a requisition of the ordinance department for five hundred thousand tons, or a shipbuilding contract for one million tons of steel, scarcely impress us any more. To the average man the figures are well-nigh meaningless except as being of large amounts. It is hard to grasp the significance of the power in fifty thousand tons of inert steel, to say nothing of the organization and the incident of production of a million tons of finished products, or even of the release from the soil of sufficient iron ore for such a quantity.

"In bulk and variety of shape and use, daily demands, now passing without special comment, would have been impossible for manufacturers even to contemplate with the facilities employed when the United States Steel Corporation was organized.

"Time is now the essence of every detail of every important contract. Its saving is effected by the corporation which can turn out the heaviest rail, the largest girder and the biggest gun or shell."

"Daily additions to capital investment in replacements and extensions, in real estate, new plants and new sources of supply of iron and copper ore, evidence not of a conspiracy to restrain trade but an unceasing struggle to keep abreast of its expanding demands, always from private enterprise and sometimes from governmental undertakings.

"We believe we could easily supply all of the guns and munitions for the British and French armies and for our own war establishment, and for our million men, all the plates and shapes for our navy, and merchant marine, railroads, bridges and buildings, and with our surplus production start at once to reconstruct the factories, railways, bridges and buildings of France and Belgium, and with the surplus then left build enough railways, bridges and culverts for one million of one hundred and sixty-five million people between Vladivostok and the Masurian marshes.

"We have men, money and material sufficient, but to do a tithe of these things will call for combinations and consolidations of enterprise and capital large enough to put no restraint on this vast new trade. If this is inflation, let us inflate."

THE DREAD OF THE DRAFT.

Now that the registration of men liable to military service has taken place, every man can begin to tell whether he has within himself the makings of a soldier. Some men who never saw themselves in that light will be surprised to see how calmly they take this overshadowing possibility.

A case of suicide of a man who, feared being drafted was reported the other day, but such instances will be infinitesimal in number. The fear of things is worse than the reality. The atmosphere of soldier camps has always been a cheerful one.

The people who will suffer will be those who are left at home. Those who go will be cheered by music, by the spirit of the army, the contagion of enthusiasm. There will be warm comradeship and hearty friendships in army life. The boys will look forward not without anticipation to seeing strange lands and foreign cities and alien people. They would not want to travel in that way, but many men who never expected to go abroad will welcome this chance to see the world.

In ancient times the young men started off for the wars in the same jolly spirit in which the boys of today start for college. In this more fearful and introspective age we have lost this careless audacity. We are upset if we can't avoid risks and if our loved ones must take them. But all reports from Europe are that the men part for the battle field with no show of feeling and in good spirits, and our boys will do the same.

The drafted men will be the heroes of their home towns and camp surroundings. Many an obscure youth who never before could get recognition will now find himself suddenly elevated on a pedestal of local fame. It will develop initiative and manliness in all who return safely, and the vast majority will, are sure to be stronger men for the experience.

BURNING UP FOOD.

Every few days one reads in some newspaper that a car of potatoes on some remote side track has been burned, or that a grain warehouse has been destroyed by fire. All accidental, of course.

It will strike lots of people that car loads of potatoes are too valuable property to be left lying alone on remote sidings. There are people among us who have an interest in having these potatoes destroyed.

Also a grain elevator is a part of our military preparation. There should be guards around all these reserves of foods under present conditions.

In some places officers are guarding public buildings, the destruction of which would not be of the least military advantage to our enemies. Meanwhile the food stocks on which our national safety depend, are left unprotected. The railroads that are transporting these commodities should be held responsible for the protection of this vital property in transit.

LOCAL PRIDE.

There should be enough civic pride to subscribe the Liberty bond sale of bonds allotted to Janesville, and at the same time take care of the subscriptions to the Red Cross and the Y. M. C. A. army work. The Liberty bonds are not a tax upon the resources; they are an asset to any community. The government borrows your money and pays you a fair rate of interest. The Red Cross asks you to donate to the cause of humanity. To contribute your money to the cause of the suffering nations, the wounded and the sick. The army Y. M. C. A. plans to equip places where the soldiers, whether recruited into foreign service by enlistment or conscription, can find a place to spend their spare hours and write home to friends, read good books and enjoy wholesome recreation. The Liberty bonds have been placed on such an easy basis that all can buy. The Red Cross work is so essential all must contribute, and the army Y. M. C. A. is such a worthy cause you must contribute, so gauge your purse accordingly.

In New York state it is now illegal to throw baseballs at African Dodgers, but no one has yet introduced a bill to save the colored man's dignity by forbidding people to black up with burnt cork for a minstrel show.

Another lot of those people that have been biting granite, according to the cheerful German phrase, are the German spies that have been trying to bite it into the negro's head that he would better revolt.

Another of those fellows who should be taken out of the back yard and introduced to the spade, is the college student who is planning to spend his summer at a resort hotel playing ball to amuse the guests.

Those young fellows who are leaving the farm to go to the cities won't be able to earn so much money, but they are cheered by the expectation that they can keep their cuffs clean.

Encouragement is felt that the Russian army will now take hold and do something, from the fact that some soldier let off a fire-cracker and three Roman candles the other day.

It doesn't follow because a fellow has spent his spare time reading of the exploits of Ex-Devil Dick, that he will walk up cheerfully to register for conscription.

No doubt the people who are inventing those anti-submarine devices will give the Germans thirty days' notice of the time when they are going to try them.

The Russian people seem to think they can buy a Pullman parlor car ticket that will transport them without struggle to the Canaan land of democracy.

In this time of scarce farm help, the intelligent officials of many states keep their able-bodied convicts at work seating chairs which any child could do.

It is bad enough to have to pay all these price advances, and still worse to have our intelligence insulted by all these reasons that they give for it.

The boys working on the farm find that a hoe is a very convenient and useful implement with which to prod the boy in the next row.

In this emergency some means can be found to feed the pigs without heaping up the garbage pails with good table food.

If baseball has to be stopped on account of the war, our national indictment against Germany will be terrible indeed.

The principal Italian offensive this spring has been the incursion of the burly gurdy men into the rural districts.

Anyway, the war has relieved us of one threatening menace, namely the annual visit of the German band.

The Daily Novelette.

TAKING THEM IN.

"Money being filthy lucre, you can't very well blame a man for trying to clean up a fortune."—Prof. Simp.

The patent tooth-wash demonstrator stood behind a dry goods box and carefully examined the teeth of a little colored boy. After asking him a few questions, he said, "Time to come off easy."

So he picked up his satchel of bottles and the boy and jumped onto the box, and yelled:

"Lies-ten to me! Listen to me!!"

In less than a moment a mixed crowd of large persons and others, had assembled.

"Ladies and gents! Here's a boy I picked up in the gutter! His bitsers are yellow and his grinders are brown; his chawers are black and his gums are worn down. Behold! With a snap and a quack of Piker's Pink Tooth Purifier and a rub and a half of this Switzer hair brush, his teeth are (scrub, scrub) white as the drifted snow!" A dime, ten cents, takes the suit, including one each of the tooth wash and—

Just then a voice arose above the murmurs of admiration from the crowd.

"Eizevier! Come right home dis yach minute, vo black bubble-bee. Dar's nuffin de maffah wid dat child's teef. He dun been eatin' huckleberry 's 'e to 'dinnah!"

With one mighty gasp, the crowd disappeared.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY K. MOULTON

IT SEEMED SO. A pleasant neighborhood, indeed, is any that rejoices in many little ones to feed And happy children's voices.

A pleasant neighborhood, in short, is any whatsoever Where many children frisk and sport In frolicsome endeavor.

In ours a many children play And have their food and slumber, We've never counted them, but they Are quite a goodly number.

With eight or ten at every door And hordes in every alley, They are ten thousand strong or more When forth to play they rally.

We've rated them too high, you're right, And we of course we're fawning; At least eight hundred, though, last night Across our lawn were running!

TODAY'S SNEER. It's usually hard to find the good in one who never finds the good in others.

Snap! Said Bertie Hill to Hattie Hoke, "A woman cannot take a joke." Said Hattie Hoke to Bertie Hill, "The woman that you marry will!"

The ostrich that conceals his head In the sand doesn't look much more foolish than the man who conceals his head in a pair of horn-rimmed specs.

New Shoes. You probably have your new summer shoes pretty well broken in by this time. It wasn't it awful for about a week there, though! Why should it be that when a man is feeling well, with nothing in particular to worry him and every reason to be happy, he will go and buy a pair of new shoes? The clerk tells him the new ones will feel fine after they are loosened up. The idea is to loosen them up. Take a day off for this. Start out and see how far you can walk in them before you have a collapse. One good scheme is to wrap your old shoes in a bundle and carry them with you. Then when you find you can suffer not another step of the agony and torture sit down on the curb and change them. It would be terrible if a new pair of shoes. Or a new suit!

Very often the "life of the party" is a dead one anywhere else.

And a Fan. Ah, for that "cool and shady grove" Where Valdeas dwell and fays are winging. That sweet poetic woodland spot The poet's ever singing!

That's just the place we yearn to be. Not that we really care a taper To hear the "elfin minstrelsy." Or see the fairies caper!

(Nay, do not weep at all or cry, Don't ask we mean to pain 'em, needer, If you believe in fairies, why, We beg your pardon, reader!)

We yearn for that cool, leafy grove. Not for the fairies we might see there. It's when the weather's so blamed hot, We yearn to be there!

It would be a sad world if the average doctor's methods and instants were as out-of-date as the magazines on his waiting room table.

SURE. Said Simon Pond to Harry Hatt, "Hurrah for War! I'm old and fat!" Said Harry Hatt to Simon Pond, "Then shut your mouth and buy a bond!"

THE LIBERTY LOAN IS THE PRICE OF PEACE

Let Us Pay This Price To Ourselves Now, Or Later To Germany

We are in this war and we can't get out of it without getting beaten badly or winning conclusively. It is a finish fight.

It doesn't matter how this situation came about. The thing now to do is to prevent a terrible misfortune from overtaking us. Americans want peace. We can have peace now in only one of two ways, by victory or defeat.

When we start out to war with the ruthless militarism of Germany, we had better not start out empty handed. Every man, woman and child in the United States has a formidable enemy confronting him or her, a ruthless enemy whose path we have crossed, a trained, efficient, experienced, desperate and vastly powerful enemy. It is going to take every dollar we can spare to defeat this Dragon.

The American Who Desires To Lie Down After Having Invited Germany To Crush Him Will Best Do So By Avoiding His Obligation To Subscribe To The Liberty Loan.

What American wishes himself to be thus labeled? None. It is the solemn duty of every man to invest $50 or a $100 or $500 in a Liberty Loan bond, an interest paying bond, a readily converted bond, a first mortgage on the United States, and to pay for it out of his savings account.

Subscribe for it today. Have your wife subscribe for one. Teach your sons and daughters thrift by buying one for them.

SEES ALIEN EXODUS WHEN THE WAR ENDS

Instead of receiving an unprecedented influx of immigrants after the war, the United States is likely to lose some two or three millions of foreigners, who will return to their native lands. Dr. Frederick C. Howe, commissioner of immigration at Ellis Island, who had confidently expected that an unusual wave of foreigners would sweep into America, has been compelled by recent events to alter his views and to admit that the wave probably will be in the other direction.

ONLY THREE DAYS LEFT TO SECURE A LIBERTY BOND

Half of Total Apportionment Must be Raised Within Next Three Days if City is to do Its Share.

Janesville's Share$400,000
Total subscribed to date $198,350
Gain over yesterday.....$13,370

With but three more days in which subscriptions can be taken for the Liberty loan, Janesville's share must be doubled in order to reach the apportionment assigned to the city. While there is some doubt as to the possibility of raising the entire amount, bankers and members of the distribution committee are moving every stone to reach the people in the short time left to them.

Two factors are encouraging for those who are pushing the loan; first, the fact that many manufacturing concerns in the city, as well as large employers of labor, have given bonds on easy payment plans, and these have not been heard from as yet; and secondly, that but few large subscriptions have been received. The amount coming from these two sources are expected to swell Janesville's total substantially.

The untiring efforts of many men, who have volunteered for the distribution of the Liberty loan, and the Boy Scouts of the city, who for the past few days have thrown out a canvassing force into all sections of the city, have brought about the comparatively large amount of subscriptions reported thus far. Bankers have realized that the people at large, those who never make investments, fail to appreciate the necessity of this loan until they are seen personally, and the loan campaigns were organized to fill this need.

The president's merit badge, which has been offered to every scout who secures ten subscriptions, has been a great deal of desire for the boys, and there are but few homes in the city which at least one scout has not called upon. Figures on the amount secured by them, over $100,000 at this time, but estimates of their results run well into the four figure mark.

But little organized canvassing has been possible in the rural districts, because of the rains and consequently bad roads, but the smaller banks throughout the county have been active, and all farmers who have come to Janesville have been confronted with the necessity of supporting the government at this crucial period.

"Even now," declared a banker this morning, "there seems to be but a vague idea of the absolute necessity of the loan to the success of the country in this war. Let alone the people's misunderstanding why America is at war, they do not regard the loan as an essential part of the war. They must be made to understand that this is a real Liberty loan, that upon its success depends the success of our armies in France, of our navy against the submarines, of our freedom against the military oppression of Russia. We cannot fight without money, and the money must come from the people."

"The matter resolves itself into the alternative of lending the money to our government now, or paying it as tribute to Germany later. There is no charity connected with it; the people are asked for a donation, the people are asked for it is the safest form of investment that is offered the people at the easiest rate imaginable. The people must take it."

MILK PRODUCERS TO MEET ON THURSDAY

To Discuss Matter of Employing a Milk Tester for Associations of Entire County.

Employment of a milk tester who shall devote his entire time to visiting the various plants with which the producers of the county do business to supplement and check up their tests may be made if the Milk Producers' association decides upon this proposed action at its meeting called by President W. O. Austin for next Thursday evening at eight o'clock at the city hall. The plan suggested is that the association of the county co-operate in securing such a tester, whose services would cost each association member but $2.50 a year, provided all agree to pay such a sum.

At the meeting Thursday the producers will also be confronted with the necessity of making good their pledges to raise a sum of $3,500 at their part in bringing the Kee & Chapel Milk company to this city. Some producers who agreed to permit a representative of the company to move up to the agreement, and as a consequence though the city has contributed its share of $3,500, the country is still behind.

At the Equator in Africa.

There are only two seasons—the wet and the dry—at the equator in Africa. The former is the summer season and lasts eight months. The thermometer averages from 110 to 125 degrees Fahrenheit. The other four months are the cold or dry season, and the thermometer rarely goes below 70 degrees Fahrenheit. During the rains the natives live in houses made principally of bamboo and roofed with leaves, but as soon as the rains stop, which is some time around June 1, they desert their towns and set out for the forests and jungles. The few household furnishings are transported on the heads of the women and children.

ALL ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR FLAG DAY

City Urged to Turn Out for Observation of This Day—Parade and Speaking Planned by Elks.

Flag Day will be observed in this city next Thursday afternoon with an elaborate program and patriotic exercises which include a parade and a number of addresses to be delivered in the court house park. The arrangements for the day, which have been undertaken by the local lodge of B. P. O. E., have practically been completed, and invitations are extended to every organization, social, business or fraternal, to participate in the ceremonies.

In the parade the Bower City band, the Boy Scouts, a number of civic societies, and probably the members of Company M. will make up the line of march. M. O. Mount will deliver a tribute to the flag and W. H. Dougherty will give the history of the flag. The entire city is urged to participate in the exercises.

Superintendent Faust has been asked to permit the school children to take part in the festivities, and it is likely that a large attendance will be present because of the added sight-seeing value of the parade. The entire city is urged to participate, either as organizations or as individuals. The exercises will begin at three o'clock, and will be preceded by the street parade, to which all are urged to join themselves to march to the court house.

Mrs. George Schenck is visiting with relatives at Chicago a portion of the week.

At nine o'clock the church bells and the fire bell tolled several times. Of course people called central, asking what the bells were ringing for. They were informed that it was time to buy a Liberty bond. The sale of bonds in the city is progressing.

The Edgerton platoon will give a fireworks display at Academy hall on Wednesday evening. Dancing from 9 p. m. to 12 o'clock. The proceeds from the dance will be added to the company fund. Better turn out.

$27,000,000 FIXED TO RUN THE STATE FOR NEXT BIENNIAL

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., June 12.—Over $27,000,000 in appropriations have been recommended by the joint finance committee of the legislature. Many of these figures are still tentative in that they are merely the recommendations of the joint finance committee and have not been acted upon by the house. The figure for departmental and boards including state aids is $14,722,618 for the coming fiscal year and $7,314,770 for the fiscal year of 1918-19. These figures, however, do not include estimates for the new trunk line highway system, which will be paid for from monies received from the federal government, the counties and increased motor license fees.

Following is a recapitulation of the sums recommended by the joint finance committee for the various agencies of government:

SAFE FARMING

WILL MAKE "WAR LOAN" OF $250,000

E. T. MEREDITH of Des Moines, Ia., makes the following announcement to the boys and girls of the Mississippi valley:

"The great middle West is recognized as the great food producing center of the United States. To the boys and girls living in this great region I will advance the sum of one-quarter of a million dollars, or more, if necessary, as a loan to worthy and industrious and well-intending boys and girls from ten to eighteen years of age. I ask for no security other than the signature of the boy or girl. I am willing to trust to their honor and patriotism to repay the loans with interest at 6 per cent at the end of one year. This quarter of a million dollars is a loan to boys and girls to purchase pigs, calves, chickens and seeds.

Boys and Girls Can Help Feed the Nation.

"There are three chief purposes behind my offer. The first consideration is to increase food production, in this great time of need during the emergency of war, in answer to President Wilson's call for united effort on the part of all the people to help. The second most important influence is to keep the young people on the farms, where they will become producers and participate in the agricultural development of the country. The third influence which I wish to bring about is the building up of the Junior Farmers club movement now being encouraged and organized by the federal government to further the extension work of the agricultural colleges of the country, in order to stimulate a higher agricultural education among the young people of the rural districts.

"I trust also that this loan, though humble it may be, may help to satisfy the desire of every boy and girl to own and care for something. I consider ownership one of the greatest character builders. Nearly a thousand boys and girls have been financed through this offer. The plan has been so well received that I am making this announcement to broaden it to any boy and girl in the great middle West. The boys and girls who cannot serve the flag in the battlefield can serve it in the harvest field."

ment of the directorate. It is Mr. Bearmore's idea to take out groups of the seniors and businessmen for overnight fishing and camping jaunts; the trips to be arranged so that everyone will have at least one opportunity of roughing it for a few hours on one of the neighboring lakes or the upper river.

Wilmath Davidson, who since the enlistment of Boys' Secretary Eakin has been heading up the work in that department, was employed to continue with his work on full time throughout the summer. A new boys' secretary will arrive in Janesville about the first of August to assist the depleted force of the association in maintaining the many activities.

HOW PRESS AGENTS SPEND THEIR TIME

Comes this from an inspired press agent: "Some one with a mathematical mind and an ulterior motive has figured out that one of the settings constructed for Fannie Ward's next picture contains 2,650 separate pieces of wood, especially prepared and fitted. It is a conservatory scene of the lattice variety, and it has been estimated that these separate pieces placed end to end in a horizontal position would reach within three feet six inches of the outside ring of Saturn. The set, which consists of the entire lower floor of a country home, was made from the first shipment of wood received from the company's recently acquired lumber yard at Honolulu."

BROADHURST PLAYS TO BE SEEN IN PICTURES

Two plays by George Broadhurst are being adapted as motion pictures. The first is "The Law of the Land," which began in the company's eastern studio last week, with Mme. Petrova in the role played by Julia Dean in the original presentation of the play. "What Money Can Buy," the other play, is being completed at the Lasky studio in Hollywood, Cal., with Jack Pickford, Louise Huff, and Theodore Roberts in the important roles. This, incidentally, is the first production to be directed by Lou Tellegen since he abandoned acting for directing.

JACKIE'S DAY

Drives to studio in the country. Is shot in eight or ten scenes, then back to luncheon at 1 o'clock.
Drives to Los Angeles, twenty-five miles.
An hour at the hair dressers.

AMUSEMENTS

WORTH SHOWS KNOWN FOR THEIR CLEANLINESS

The formal opening of the carnival season will take place the week of June 18 with the appearance here of the Big C. A. Wortham show, the biggest of its kind in existence. The show will be here in its entirety and under the personal direction of C. A. Wortham himself.

C. A. Wortham is known in the show world as the apostle of cleanliness. He has a reputation for being a man of spirit and satire, but which he has turned to good account and made such a reputation on the strength of it that at the present he is undisputed king of the outdoor amusement field.

Starting four years ago with the firm purpose of eliminating the objectionable show from all his enterprises and setting a new standard for tested attractions, he has since steadily kept on with his slogan, VV Decency First, until now the shows that bear his name are the ones that put nearly every state fair in the country and every big celebration, such as the Fiesta San Jacinto at San Antonio, the Ak-Sar-Ben at Omaha, the Oh-Tau-Oh at Houston, Texas, and the Cotton Palace celebration at El Paso, Texas, offers him the refusal of their contracts before looking elsewhere for their amusement features.

This is a reputation of which he is extremely proud and one that has never been conceded to any living showman. It is a moot saying that what Kingling is to the circus, Kingling is to the exposition and the outdoor business; in fact, the Wortham shows are cleanliness personified.

There are 450 performers and attaches connected with the Wortham organization, a miniature city in themselves. The Wortham band is composed of twenty-eight talented musicians under the leadership of Prof. Jameson, late of the seventh cavalry, and his intricate concert and extremely appropriate at the present time.

The Wortham show will arrive next Sunday from Kankakee, Ill., and open here Monday for six days at the foot of Franklin street, the usual show ground.

BURBANK DEVELOPS NEW GARDEN PLANTS

Entire, new garden vegetables are being developed by Luther Burbank from the bulbs of lilacs. The bulbs of the lily, a bear of beautiful flowers, is regarded by him as the most delicious of vegetables when cooked. Others, especially the camassia and the brodia, promise to rival the potato. He also believes that the dandelion, the burdock and the thistle may become parents of useful food plants.

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON
BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I read the article written by Dimples and I want to say that I would not have been of that kind in my long list of friends. I am only seventeen years old yet I know that boys do not really care for girls with whom they may do as they wish. When a girl allows a boy to kiss her they think her great deal less of her. They tell other boys and even other girls how easy she is and they have a good laugh over it. I know I am a girl and yet some boys of my acquaintance tell me things as they would tell them to a sister, never once have they said anything to me that would not be right and I am proud of that fact.

It shows that a girl of the right sort can have friends among every kind of boys as I have. And when they tell me these things they laugh and make fun of the boy who was so sure. If all girls could only hear about things that they think are personal they would want to hide from the world. The boys do not hesitate to tell anyone about the girls who are cheap. If some of these girls who do all the kissing could have even one friend who would put his confidence in them and tell them of the boys and would seek higher things, I should think that "Dimples" would shrink from her own heart and hide it from the world as much as I possibly could and say that even if I did dare to have the boys kiss me I would not let anyone know it. I am almost sure that the two boy friends of "Dimples" will never marry that sort of girl. When the boys come to choose their wives they will take those that have kept their kisses. Boys respect the girls who hold themselves aloof from kissing.

The girl who said that "girls who follow your advice are chumps" is a humbug in my estimation because I think your advice is excellent, perhaps a trifle too serene. I would shrink from coming in contact with such girls as "Dimples" least they soil my soul.

Again telling you how wonderful I think your advice is, I am
YOUR FRIEND,
You show very good judgement—much better than most little girls of your age. You will not want for the best sort of boy friends because they will like you for your personality, your self and not your kisses.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am twelve years old and I am going to graduate this June. We are going to have a party at night. Is a light pink crepe de chine dress all right to wear? I am going to make it neat and simple.

(2) If the rest of the girls have a boy take them home and I don't believe in young girls having boys take them home would it be all right to have my brother or father come after me? A GRADUATE.

(1) A pink crepe de chine would be very pretty.

(2) You should have your brother or father call for you. Girls of your age are too young to go to evening parties unless some one in their own family sees that they get home all right.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl of fifteen. Recently I met a young man at a house party and we fell in love with each other immediately. My parents say that this is silly because there can be no love at fifteen. He is two years older than I am. He wanted to go to a dance with me, but knowing that my parents would object I refused. Do you think I did the right thing?

(2) Please tell me whether it is correct to chew gum in public or on the street. I do not, but my friend does and she says it's all right.

(3) Do you think learning to play the ukulele would be worth while? I am musical. FAIR MISS.

(1) You did do the right thing. You are too young to go to dances.

(2) The only place where it is all right to chew gum is in the privacy of your own room.

(3) Yes.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Is there anything that will kill the roots of the hair with only one or two applications? H. R.

There is nothing that will kill the roots of hair without doing great injury to the skin. The only safe way to have hair removed is by the electric needle.

SIDE TALKS

—BY—
RUTH CAMERON

How to Detect Low Breeding

Did you ever watch a group of young people entering to each other while some older person sat silent in their midst, almost as much ignored as if he or she were invisible? It is a sight I see every once in a while and it always lifts me with a combination of sadness and distrust. Sadness for the older person who has learned by the bitter experience of snubs or indifference to soiled his own reputation. Distrust because, besides being unkind, it is such a wretched taste for young people to treat their elders that way.

Such Treatment of Age Not to Be Tolerated.

It really isn't done among people of breeding, refinement and education. It simply isn't the thing. Even if kindness didn't dictate courtesy to older people and a habit of including them in the conversation, good taste would.

Young people of even superficial breeding are courteous to their friends' elders. Any young person who is the slightest bit of a snub to the oldest person in the room is careless of his friends' families; to ask after their health, to converse with them when they answer the telephone instead of immediately asking for the son or daughter, to rise when they enter the room, to say goodnight to them when leaving the house.

And young people with breeding more than skin deep are courteous to their own elders.

It is only Underebred Young People Who Flaunt Their Youth.

It is only underebred young people who contradict their elders freely, snap them up if they dare to express an opinion, ignore them, laugh at their ideas, flaunt their own youth in their faces.

People of breeding don't flaunt their youth any more than they would their money.

That is what true breeding does for people, raises them to a higher level where courtesy and decency to each other are just as natural and as dispensable habits as frequent bathing.

Breeding Should Bring Out Good Qualities in Humans.

Breeding in animals is to bring out the desired qualities—in cows a large yield of milk, in a race horse speed, in the dog whatever points are considered most desirable.

Breeding in human beings should strengthen all the most desirable qualities—should make them more intelligent, more altruistic, more opinionated, more healthy and more livable.

Suppose there were a human being show. "Would surely be most interesting to see who would take prizes on such points."

Household Hints

CORN MEAL AND HOMINY RECIPES.

Corn Meal Mush. A cereal, corn flour is excellent if properly cooked. The secret of success is to keep the water at the boiling point until after the corn meal is added. Sprinkle slowly into the boiling water, seasoned with one teaspoonful of salt, a cup of corn meal, stirring briskly to avoid lumps. When corn meal is added, the mush will be thick and creamy. Fried Corn Meal Mush. Leftover mush can be sliced and fried brown. It served with syrup or fresh or cooked fruits it makes a delicious luncheon dish.

Another way to utilize corn meal mush is to slice it cold, sprinkle with grated cheese and season with salt, pepper and finely minced parsley. Place in greased tin and brown in oven.

Corn Meal Fish Cakes—One cup shredded codfish (soaked in water if excessively salty), two cupfuls cold corn meal, one egg and one-half cupfuls of butter. Mix thoroughly and drop by spoonfuls into hot fat. When brown drain on brown paper and serve with watercress or other greens.

Corn Meal Fudding—Heat four cups of milk and pour over five cupfuls corn meal. Add one cup molasses, one cup stoned raisins and spices to taste. In a pudding dish mix a piece of butterine size of a large egg and pour mixture into this. Bake in moderate oven and serve hot.

Hominy is another corn product, as is also samp. It is really large hominy and much used by our western and southern housewives as a vegetable in place of potatoes.

How to Cook Hominy—Add one cup hominy to four cups boiling water. Many an epidemic of typhoid fever has been traced to just such a cause. A country school picnic was held at Helena, California, May 13, 1916. Two hundred persons attended. The evening many who attended were seized with nausea, vomiting and diarrhoea, indicating an acute intestinal infection. Intoxications. These symptoms abated after about two days, but all but two of the victims developed typhoid fever after a week or more had elapsed. The patients were desperately ill—about three of the cases the blood examination was positive (Widel test).

The only dish partaken by all the twenty-three victims proved to have been the ice cream. But Mrs. Y. who made the ice cream, and her daughter, both ate some, yet did not contract typhoid, though they did suffer from the others' intestinal toxemia with the others at first.

Both vanilla and chocolate cream were served, the chocolate being the cream made by Mrs. Y. and the chocolate proved the more popular. Twenty-five of the guests preferring it to the vanilla ice cream. Twenty-three of these developed typhoid. Those who ate only vanilla cream did not develop typhoid.

Mrs. Y. was later proved to be the culprit. She was a typhoid carrier—she had had typhoid fever seventeen years previously. Her daughter was immune by reason of having received the anti-typhoid vaccine two years previously. A great lesson there, if you are not immune.

In the course of the past few years six school teachers in Iowa have been the ice cream. But Mrs. Y. who made the ice cream, and her daughter, both ate some, yet did not contract typhoid, though they did suffer from the others' intestinal toxemia with the others at first.

GRAHAM GRIDDLE CAKES.

Two cups graham flour, one-half cup white flour, two tablespoons corn meal, two teaspoons sugar, three-quarters teaspoon soda, one teaspoon cream of tartar, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon melted butter and about two and one-quarter cups milk.

Mix the dry ingredients together, then stir the melted butter lightly through them. Mix to a thin batter with the milk and fry on a griddle. They may be eaten with butter and a thin sprinkling of sugar, with cream and sugar, or with syrup.

TO SAFEGUARD SILKS AND SATINS.

Silks and satins are being so largely used for the development of dresses, suits and coats that it is important to observe certain rules at the very beginning of their possession if these materials are to give satisfactory service.

For examples, large pins or needles should never be used either in the fitting or the stitching of silk fabrics. They make permanent holes and, if extra large, break the threads, then the silk tears easily. Dressmakers should be cautioned against the use of such pins and needles.

Put new needles in the sewing machine before working on new silks. With old needles, even slightly blunted, the silk is certain to pucker and draw.

Douglas and Patty Discuss the Mystery of Prosaic Gordon Road.

"Patty, has Eleanor told you about the message just to see what kind of people lived there. There was no light, no sign of life about, but that did not deter her; nothing does when she gets her mind made up to do a thing." Douglas chuckled. "There was no answer to the ring, but a great scurrying around ensued and finally we heard the back door open and two men ran out and started across the lawn. I saw them, for I had followed Eleanor who had started down the walk leading to the back door. By this time I was as much interested as she was and determined to learn something about affairs. I called, and the man nearest the house stopped and came toward me; the other made good his escape. He seemed very gentlemanly and thanked me profusely for bringing the message. Now what in time were two men doing in a dark house alone, and what did they run for when they heard the bell?" Patty shook her head, unable to solve the mystery.

"Why did they not keep quiet if they did not want to open the door? No one would have known they were there."

"The only thing I can think of is that they were afraid the door would be forced," said Douglas meaningly. "Forced," repeated Patty.

"Yes, they must have been expecting officers of the law."

"Then why would the man come back when you called?" asked Patty. "He glanced over his shoulder and saw that a woman was with me, which convinced him that I was no officer."

"That number did she ask you to call up?" asked Patty after a silence.

"I do not remember, but Eleanor has it written down."

"That ought to give some clue, I should think," said Douglas.

"We'll look it up."

"Don't you think you should report the affair to the police or some body?" continued Patty. "It really looks serious to me."

"We'll see what turns up when we look up the telephone number," answered Douglas, rousing himself from his deep thought.

block away. Surely no one was occupying that house then, and that was only two days ago," broke in Patty.

"It is certainly mighty queer. Some one called up Eleanor yesterday afternoon and asked for me. It was a woman's voice, but she would not give a name; she said she used to work in the office with me, but I can think of no one who ever was in the office who would be likely to do a thing like that."

"What call up your wife and ask for you?" laughed his sister.

Douglas threw her a withering glance and asked to have me go to this house and tell her to call up a number on the telephone."

"How could they call up if they had no phone?" exclaimed Patty.

"She said the phone was disconnected, but could be used to call up from the house or some such rot."

"Did you go?" inquired the sister.

"I had no notion of going, but Eleanor was very curious, and after dinner she proposed a walk, and when we were opposite the house she

THE HANDLING OF ICE-CREAM.

Everybody knows that a case of typhoid fever in a milkman's family renders the milk produced and handled by members of that family liable to contamination with typhoid bacteria. Many an epidemic of typhoid fever has been traced to just such a cause.

A country school picnic was held at Helena, California, May 13, 1916. Two hundred persons attended. The evening many who attended were seized with nausea, vomiting and diarrhoea, indicating an acute intestinal infection. Intoxications. These symptoms abated after about two days, but all but two of the victims developed typhoid fever after a week or more had elapsed. The patients were desperately ill—about three of the cases the blood examination was positive (Widel test).

The only dish partaken by all the twenty-three victims proved to have been the ice cream. But Mrs. Y. who made the ice cream, and her daughter, both ate some, yet did not contract typhoid, though they did suffer from the others' intestinal toxemia with the others at first.

Both vanilla and chocolate cream were served, the chocolate being the cream made by Mrs. Y. and the chocolate proved the more popular. Twenty-five of the guests preferring it to the vanilla ice cream. Twenty-three of these developed typhoid. Those who ate only vanilla cream did not develop typhoid.

Mrs. Y. was later proved to be the culprit. She was a typhoid carrier—she had had typhoid fever seventeen years previously. Her daughter was immune by reason of having received the anti-typhoid vaccine two years previously. A great lesson there, if you are not immune.

In the course of the past few years six school teachers in Iowa have been the ice cream. But Mrs. Y. who made the ice cream, and her daughter, both ate some, yet did not contract typhoid, though they did suffer from the others' intestinal toxemia with the others at first.

Poison Ivy.

"I am subject to poison ivy and have to be exposed to it more or less in my occupation. Can you give me a remedy in the way of a preventative—something I could use on face and hands when I have to go near the ivy?" (C. P. L.)

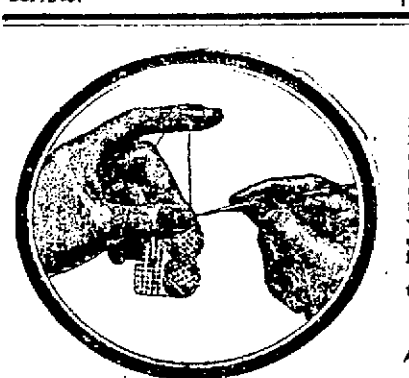

Answer—Smear face and hands with any grease, such as vaseline, when you know you are going near poison ivy. Bathe exposed parts of skin with pledgets of cotton dipped in alcohol to remove any of the volatile irritant on the skin, as soon as you can after exposure. The irritant is acid; therefore alkaline lotions are good—strong salicylic solution, lime water, or bathing with weak ammonia.

water. Some sufferers have immunized themselves against poison ivy dermatitis by taking internally, after each meal, for several weeks, a weak tincture of poison ivy leaf, in doses gradually increasing from two or three drops to fifteen drops. The free use of any soap for bathing immediately after exposure is a good home remedy more or less preventative.

FEET

It costs from $15 to $45 a year to maintain a pair of feet.

Everybody is born with feet and is responsible to them the rest of his life. Feet are one of the necessary expenses of existence. This is true in spite of the fact that a great many of us have almost altogether abandoned our feet and have learned to depend upon swifter and more advanced methods of getting from one place to another.

Humanity is coming more and more to depend upon feet for short hauls only.

A man contemplating matrimony should remember that he is doubtful, and perhaps multiplying even further than that, the number of feet to which he is responsible.

Feet have many malaises all their own, and all in all, are so sensitive and so unsightly and so expensive that we all await some suitable substitute for them, either here or hereafter. We look both to Thomas A. Edison and to Saint Peter for complete relief from feet. Wings, however, may be just as much of a bother and nuisance as feet. We await wings with interest.

CIVIL ENGINEER

Copyright by Fleming H. Revell Company

The throb that told of the tremendous pressure of the waves, the quiver that experience could feel the prelude to failure, began to die away, to stop. What did it mean? The thunder grew still, the rain diminished, it ceased, the clouds broke. Some great hand, as of God, swiftly tore the black vault of the heavens apart. Faint light began to glow over the sudden land. Through the rift they saw dimly one great peak of mighty range. What had happened?

"Here," said Vandeventer. How white he looked, how haggard, streaks of gray in his black hair that had not been there before, but his eyes were blazing. He was still the indomitable chief of the Spartan band. The nearest men gave him a hand. He clambered up to his former vantage point on top of the highest log of the stockade and stared down. The rise of the water had stopped! He could not believe it, yet it was true. The rule had ceased again, but by every natural law the drainage from the hills would continue for some time in full volume. Yes, by all rights the dam was doomed. The water still trickled through the palisades in many small streams. That had been a gallant effort they had made, even if a vain one.

For ten minutes he stood silent, exhausted. Then he saw. The water was not rising. No, it was falling; only a trifle, but enough. Presumably it had stopped filtering through the revetment. He looked back. Not a drop ran on the other side of the palisade. Vandeventer knew that the water must be discharging somewhere. The lake must have broken through somewhere. He only needed that hint to recall the hogback, and then Meade. He saw it all now.

"We've won, the dam's saved," he cried greatly to the men who stood back of the palisade staring at him. "Roberts has blown up the hogback. The water's falling. See for yourselves."

Every man sprang up the palisade. Someone laughed and then someone raised a cheer, and those mud-covered, sodden, worn-out men, who had been about to die, saluted in heroic acclaim him who had led them to victory and by implication him who had made that triumph possible.

CHAPTER XXI.

The Testimony of the Dead. Just as Helen Illingworth and Winters reached the lower level at the foot of the mesa, they were joined by Rodney.

"What has happened?" cried the engineer.

Winters answered as the three hurried along without stopping:

"Meade blew up the hogback."

"Was that he?"

"Yes."

"I thought there was something familiar about him, but I did not dare."

"I recognized him instantly," said Helen Illingworth.

"That atones for the International," continued Rodney.

"What does?" asked his friend.

"The dam is safe; the water has stopped rising. I believe it's beginning to fall a little. I saw someone jump up on the palisade and wave his hand, and then I saw them all gather around, evidently cheering."

"I should think the water would be lowered," said Winters; "it's pouring out of a hole in the hogback as big as a church."

"It was a fine thing in Meade. Let's hurry and tell him so," answered Rodney.

"I'm afraid it's too late," said Winters.

"Oh, don't say that," cried the girl.

"Why, what's happened?"

"The second blast was slow in going off," said Winters; "he went back to look at it, and got knocked over. It looked pretty bad from the top of the mesa."

Rodney would not have been human if he had not felt a leap in his breast at the possibility, but he was too loyal a friend and too genuinely fond of Meade for more than a passing emotion, for which he was more than a little ashamed.

"Let us press on," he urged.

In a few moments they stopped by the three men. Meade was still unconscious. The big Irishman sat on the grass with the engineer's head on his knee. The deaf-fingered little Italian was trying to wash the blood away from the unconscious man's forehead with a sodden, ragged piece of cloth. Meade was unconscious, he was breathing heavily. There was a catch in his respiration. His breath came at irregular intervals and was labored as if painful.

A huge rock had struck him in the breast. The two men had torn open his shirt and undershirt. The engineer's chest was bruised and bloody. Evidently bones had been broken, and probably serious internal injuries had resulted. Every breath was an apparent agony, and that the exquisite pain did not arouse him to consciousness was evidence of the terrible nature of the injury. A smaller, sharper rock had cut him across the forehead and cheek, just missing his right eye, and they found out afterward that he had been struck by several other pieces dislodged by the explosion, and that his body was covered with bruises.

But there was nothing, not even in the cut on the forehead, to cause any great alarm had it not been for the crushed chest. Winters and Rodney were both men of action, accustomed to quick thinking and prompt decision in emergencies; while Helen Illingworth could only stand with clenched hands staring in mental anguish that paralleled the physical suffering of the man she loved, the engineer, and the rancher immediately made preparations to get the wounded man to the car.

Murphy wore in his belt a short woodman's ax. With it they cut down two young saplings, trimmed them and thrusting them through the sleeves of their raincoats they made a fairly practicable litter. Using the utmost care, they laid the unconscious man upon it and Winters and Murphy, the two biggest men, took the handles at either end. Helen Illingworth, praying as she had never prayed before, sought to support the unconscious man's head. The Italian gathered up the tools and went ahead to open up the path. Rodney followed after.

Their progress was slow of necessity. They had to handle Meade with great care. Winters and Rodney, after the brief inspection they had made, could not see a chance on earth for him. Neither could Helen Illingworth. They went along without conversation, naturally, except for an outburst of admiration from Winters.

"I tell you," he said, "it was a magnificent thing for him to do. He risked his life a hundred times in that mad rush with the dynamite in his hands and the detonators in his pocket. Yet if he had only stayed back he would have been safe."

"It was his anxiety for the dam and the people that brought him down," said Helen Illingworth. "He can't die," she murmured. "God surely will not let him die. I love him so. And yet if he does and I have lost him, innocent or guilty, he has redeemed his fame."

"He saved others," quoted Rodney under his breath, "himself he could not save."

It was a work of great clemency to get the wounded engineer into the car, but they finally managed it. By the woman's direction they laid him on her bed in her own private stateroom.

"One of us must go for a doctor at once," said Rodney, "and that will be my job."

"It's twenty miles to the town," said the conductor, who had helped to receive them. "If one of you could telegraph we could tap a wire."

None of them could.

"It's all down-grade and there's a good roadbed and I was some sprinter in my college days," said Rodney.

"And there was never greater need of haste than now," said Winters. "I wish I had a horse here."

"Don't give up, Miss Illingworth," continued Rodney, as he started toward the door. "He's alive yet."

Just then, opportunely enough, rounding the last curve before the arch bridge, they saw the end of the other car rapidly approaching them. Had they not been so excited they could have heard the furious puffing of the engine as it drove the car at great speed up the heavy grade.

"Wait," said the conductor, "we can send the engine down for the doctor. That'll be the colonel's car."

In a few minutes the car stopped on the siding. Out of it came Colonel Illingworth, Doctor Severance, Curtiss, and some of the officials of the Bridge company in town. They were all greatly excited. The colonel did not stop to put on his hat. He ran to the other car and climbed aboard.

"The dam's going," he shouted. "The bridge and the town will be flooded. We got word an hour ago by a messenger galloping down. The telephone wires are down. I ran the car up here as the quickest way to get over to the reservoir and the dam. Some of you who know the way come with me."

By this time the observation room of the car was filled with men.

"You need not worry about the dam," said Rodney.

"What do you mean?"

"A man blew up the hog-back, made a spill-way, the water rushed out through it into the ravine, you can see it below there, relieving the pressure on the dam at once. Since it has held up till now it will hold for good."

"Thank God!" cried the colonel, sinking down into a chair and wiping the sweat off his brow. "The bridge will be safe then. By George," he gasped, "the Martlet company could hardly have stood another loss like that. Who's the man who blew it up?"

"His name is Meade," said Rodney quietly.

"Not—?"

"Yes."

There was a long pause. Every man there knew of the failure of the

"Well, it was a fine thing," said the colonel; "it makes up for his blundering work on the bridge."

Dinner Stories

Some years ago the commanding officer of a military station gave orders that no one should be allowed to step over the grass where the cow was pastured. The next day the general's wife, wishing to take a short cut, started to walk from one path to another. "No one to pass here, madam," said the sentry. The lady drew herself up. "Do you know who I am?" she demanded. "No, madam," replied the impassive soldier. "I do not know who you are. But I know you are not the general's cow, and nobody else is permitted to walk on this grass."

A large map was spread upon the wall and the teacher was instructing the class in geography.

"Horace," said she to a small pupil "when you stand in Europe facing the north you have on your left hand the great Atlantic ocean. What have you on your right hand?"

"A wall," replied Horace, "but I can't help it, teacher."

The proof-reader on a London suburban newspaper was a woman of great precision and extreme propriety. One day a reporter succeeded in getting into type an item about "Willie Brown, the boy who was burned in the west end by a live wire."

On the following day the reporter found on his desk a frigid note asking: "Which is the west end of a boy?"

It took only an instant to reply: "The end the son sits on, of course."

"Why do you sign your name 'J. John B. B. B. Bronson'?" asked

"Because it is my name," said Bronson.

"Because it is my name," said Bronson. "It was christened by a minister who stuttered."

THAT WHICH COUNTS.

What is it that counts in the celestial city? Only that good which is done for the love of doing it. Only those plans in which the welfare of others is the master thought. Only those labors in which the sacrifice is greater than the wages. Only those gifts in which the giver forgets himself.—Henry van Dyke.

Did You Ever See a Runaway?

The other day we witnessed a runaway, and here is what happened: A slick, well-fed, amiable-looking team of horses was coming along the road, lachadaiisically pulling a farm wagon.

Those horses looked safe as a clock, and fit for a child to handle, and so they were—until the unexpected happened.

A puff of wind took a stray newspaper out of the fence corner, opened it and whirled the outspread sheets thru the air and past the very noses of that team, and there was something doing at once.

Immediately the pair reared up, then plunged ahead, and ran like mad, upsetting the wagon, injuring the driver, and smashing things generally, stopping at last a mile down the track, spent, and shivering with fear.

Why Did They Run?

Afraid!

What was there to make them afraid?

Nothing—merely their own imaginings.

But then—they were horses. Men are reasoning beings and should have it on their equine friends in the ability to exercise "sense"—and it should take considerably more than as yet loomed up on the sky-line to upset the business poise of these United States.

This is not the time to be fearful—it is the time to be busy!

We must go right on buying and selling and pushing ahead!

Any let-down now—except in the matter of downright waste—would make it just so much harder to win the war!

Pat Moran in one sentence is quoted as saying that he doesn't want his players to talk pennant, and in another as saying for himself that he is sure his team will come through. Evidently Pat wants to do all the pennant talking himself, though he is not ordinarily loquacious.

Harry McCormick, who used to pinch hit for the Giants, is getting ready to do his bit for Uncle Sam. The "Moose" is at Plattsburg training to fit himself for a commission. Harry and Eddie Grant are the two best known factors from the majors making ready for military careers.

With Defate taken by national commission ruling Hornsby absent because of the death of a brother and Betzel injured the St. Louis Cardinals were up against it for an infielder, so Sammy Bohne was recalled from the St. Paul club, to which he had been sent on option at the start of the season.

They are all talking. Johnny Rawlings now in Boston. The former Fed leaguer seems to have made good as a substitute at second base and Evers, Massey or Fitzpatrick will have a hard time taking his job away from him.

Talk about Jack Coombs having it on the Giants—what is the matter with Al Demaree? His recent victory over McGraw's men as a Cub marked the fourteenth straight defeat he has handed them since he was traded to the Phillies for Hans Lobert. That is more games than Lobert has won for McGraw.

A St. Louis high school baseball team has a pitcher who seems to be a wonder. In 65 innings against other high school teams in St. Louis he did not allow an earned run. Report has it he will not a year with the St. Louis Cardinals if he wants to take up baseball as a profession. His name is Hager.

Howard Ehmke.

Howard Ehmke, the Detroit Tigers' brilliant young pitching recruit, who won 21 games for Syracuse, leading the New York State league pitchers last season, is one of the best of the young pitchers to come into fast company this season and he is also one of the thinnest.

Army men having taught ball players to drill the players will now reciprocate by teaching the military men to play ball. It is announced in Chicago that Jimmy Sheppard and Jimmy Archer of the Cubs will act as coaches at the naval training station near Chicago, where several thousand rookies are learning the ropes.

KILLIFER A BIG COG IN PHILS' MACHINE

Bill Killifer.

Bill Killifer, the Phils' star backstop, deserves credit for much of the excellent showing the Quaker team is making this season. It is apparent to many baseball critics that Killifer is one of the most valuable men to his club in either of the big leagues. Last season Bill's work was a bit off, as he had been injured in the fall of 1915. This season he's going at his greatest pace.

President Ebbets, though he completes cords on cords of date slaving what the weather is at certain times, in his campaign for a late opening of the major league seasons, is a poor guesser at that. One day recently he decided to play a game of ball and went through with it though it rained, blew and misbehaved generally. The next day he guessed it would rain and called off a game. And the sun shone brightly all day.

Sam Crawford of the Detroit Tigers invested $5,000 in the Liberty Loan and was the first man to subscribe in the organized movement started by a committee of Detroit business men to raise the Michigan city's share of the war loan.

Cap. Til. Huston is a hopeful cuss. Just now he is busy recruiting his regiment of army engineers for service in France, but he says that he hopes to get a leave of absence next fall and return to see the Yankees and Giants play the world's series in New York. He probably would have no trouble getting a leave of absence, but as far as seeing the series, that is another matter.

Now that the principle of a fair draft has been upheld and the Detroit club has secured Clyde Defate the experts are speculating on what Jennings will do with him. He is not likely to succeed Owen Bush at short and the Tigers have several third basemen, so there is no chance there. Defate may be a good ball player—there is a suspicion that he is—but he was not used enough by the St. Louis Cardinals to decide that question.

The Detroit club, through Scout Charley Barrett, has signed outfielder Edmund Millard of the Clinton club of the Central Association. Miller, according to Barrett, is one of the greatest long distance hitters he has seen in the minors. He is not fast on his feet, but drives them far and the Tigers have several third basemen, so there is no chance there. Defate may be a good ball player—there is a suspicion that he is—but he was not used enough by the St. Louis Cardinals to decide that question.

Oliver O'Mara, former Brooklyn shortstop, has failed with the Oakland and Col. Ebbets, who has a string tied to him, is trying to send him to a Class A league club.

Adirondacks.

"Adirondacks" is an Indian word meaning "wood eaters" and was a term applied in derision to a defeated Indian tribe driven to the mountains by the Iroquois and forced to live there on bark and berries.

SEBASTOPOL FIGURES IN RUSSIAN HISTORY

Washington, D. C., June 12.—The National Geographic society, in a war geography bulletin, gives the following timely information concerning the Russian Black sea port of Sebastopol, where Admiral Kolchak is reported to have come in conflict with a group of workmen's and soldiers' delegates recently: "Sebastopol, with a population of 77,000 before the outbreak of the European war, was one of the principal seaports of South Russia. It enjoys the advantage of an exceptionally fine harbor, the city being situated in a deep bay which cuts into the southwestern shore of the Crimea for a distance of four miles. The average depth of the water in the harbor is sixty-five feet, and vessels of sea-going draft can anchor alongside the shore. "With the exception of Petrograd and Moscow, the name of no city in Russian empire is so familiar to the ears of the great siege which it withstood in the Crimean war of 1854-55, when the French, English and Sardinian allies sacrificed 30,000 men before the place fell, after 349 days of heroic resistance. In that memorable eleven months the Russians lost 120,000 men, and it is said that when the victors entered the city on September 8th, 1855, there were only fourteen buildings which had not been seriously damaged by the shell fire of 800 cannons which had been employed by the English versus the city of the struggle Sebastopol numbered more than 40,000 inhabitants; seven years after the war it had only succeeded in recovering to the extent of a population of 5,000.

"Everywhere the visitor turns in Sebastopol he finds mementoes of the great struggle—museums, galleries and monuments erected to the defense of the city, most distinguished of whom was the great Totleben, who designed the earthwork defenses and who directed the Russian forces until severely wounded shortly before the city's fall, across the bay to the north is a treeless plain in the midst of which is the Russian cemetery, where 100,000 soldiers are buried.

"There are two famous battlefields in the vicinity of Sebastopol—Inkerman, four miles to the east, and Balaklava, eight miles to the southeast. It was on these fields, immortalized in English verse, that attempts were made by the Russians to raise the siege early in the conflict.

"Two miles southwest of Sebastopol are the remains of the famous Greek city of Chersonesus, founded by a Doric and the last survivor among the Greek city states. It was for many centuries the center of trade in the Euxine and only began to decline when the Genoese traders restricted its commerce. The Romans used the city as a place of banishment. St. Clement and Justinian II being the two most distinguished of its exiles.

SPRAYING WILL SAVE HALF OF APPLE CROP

Madison, Wis., June 12.—"At least one-half of the total apple crop in Wisconsin is lost annually because of the lack of proper spraying." This is a statement issued by the college of agriculture today as a war bulletin to horticulturalists to do all possible to preserve the apple crop this year. The statement declares that 20 cents will pay for the spraying of a sufficient number of barrels to save an entire orchard. The statement further says that by spraying the number of culls can be reduced from 75 per cent to 10 per cent, and the number of perfect apples is increased from 10 per cent to 75 per cent, and that 20 cents worth of spray will increase the value of a barrel of apples 200 per cent. The bulletin advises all farmers that by spraying their apple orchards they can be made to produce $500 worth of fruit where they had less than $100 worth before spraying.

"An investigation made during the summer of 1915," declares H. F. Wilson of the department of horticulture, "showed that the greater part of this loss is caused by a number of insects which feed on or within the fruit of the apple, making it unsalable.

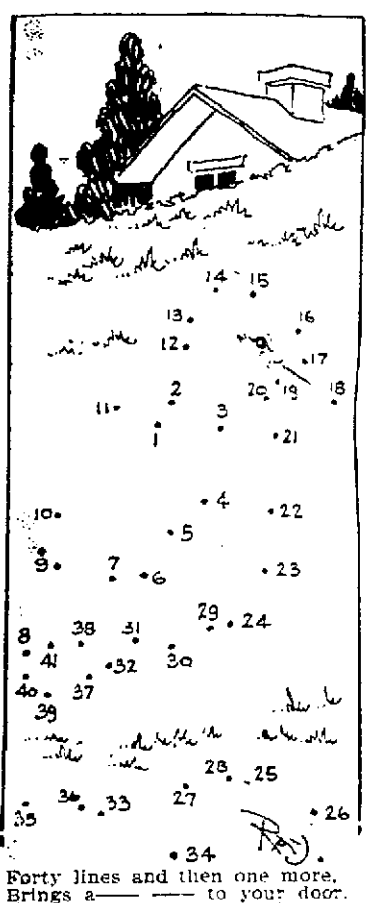

"In a neglected orchard, it is not uncommon to find from 75 to 100 per cent of the fruit injured by apple pests, and frequently to such an extent that almost the entire crop is unmarketable.

"The most important of these apple pests are the codling moth and plum curculio. Several others of less importance are the lesser apple worm and several species of green fruit worms.

"The lesser apple worm was reported in Wisconsin for the first time this season, although it must have been here a good many years past. That it had not been previously noticed is probably due to the fact that the worm itself, as well as the injury which it does, closely resembles that of the codling moth larvae.

"The so-called green fruit worms are greenish worms which live in nests of folded leaves and cause injury by eating holes in the fruit. Every apple attacked becomes deformed and produces a cull. Very little information has been secured on the distribution of these lesser pests within the state.

and no information is available as to the extent of the injury which they may be causing. "Expensive spray machinery is unnecessary and every farmer should have a small sprayer of some kind. A very satisfactory outfit can be secured for from thirty to fifty dollars. Any grower desiring information regarding spray machinery may secure it by writing to the department of horticulture."
